DOUBLE VOTE-CASH PRIZE OFFER BEST

No More Extra Prizes and Votes Decrease After October 1-S. F. Hungerford Leads Published Voting List.

As was announced at the outset, all new subscriptions turned in between September 5 and October 1, inclusive, will count just twice the regular number of votes. After 10 p. m., October 1, the vote value of new subscriptions decrease materially. There will be no more special cash prizes offered and never again will subscriptions count for

NOW is the time for all members to start out on the doublequick and pile up an automobile-winning vote. Thus far no candidate has gained a lead that cannot be overcome by a little extra hustling. The DOUBLE VOTE-CASH PRIZE OFFER should stir up new interest in each of the districts.

Those who have been thinking of joining should hesitate no ger, but jump into the thick of the fray today. The "Double Vote Offer" affords the best opportunity to make a flying start. A few subscriptions are sufficient to put a newcomer well up in the running.

New subscriptions delivered by agent or carrier count as follows during the remaining time of the Double Vote Period:

By DWIG Another Reading Course For U. S. Citizen Soldiers

(Issued by the War Department to The Washington Herald.) Editor's Note.—This course of thirty daily lessons is offered to the men selected for service in the National Army as a practical help in geting started in the right way. It is informal in tone and does not attem to give binding rules and directions. These are contained in the various manuals and regulations of the United States Army, to which this Cour is merely introductory. The lessons will appear daily in The Heraid.

LESSON NO. 29—WARFARE IN EUROPE.

In previous sections of this course army life and service have been described without special reference to the changes brought about by the present war. There are important changes, and methods of training and of fighting used in previous wars must, of course, be modified accordingly. The extent of these changes, however, is often exaggerated. At bottom, the qualities that make a good soldier or an efficient army remain the same today that they were before the war. The changes that affect the individual soldier have to do chiefly with weapons. But behind every weapon there is a man. If the weapon is to be used effectively, the man must be well trained, disciplined, cool and brave. He must have spirit, tenacity, and self-reliance. The big problem now, just as in other wars, is to develop these qualities—to their highest extent. The chief difference probably comes in the fact that self-reliance is a bigger factor than in most previous wars.

first very effective, since no defense against it had been prepared. At the present time, however, each man in or near the front carries a gas mask, which enables him to meet an attack of this kind without serious injury.

Staff Organizations.

Back of the lines the organization of the staft branches of the service has been enormously extended. Rall-roads are constructed up to within as bort drevers have also made notable gains in methods of treating wounded men, with the result that a very large percentage recover. Even in the early months of the war it was announced that of the wounded actually treated in Franch hospitals 54.5 per cent were turned to duty within a short time: 24.5 per cent were settle in the hospitals, with the probability of complete recovery; 1.5 per cent were unfit for further service; 2.5 per cent died from the effects of their wounded.

Character of War. This war differs from previous wars chiefly in the enormous increase in the use of artillery. This is due partly to the immense manufacturing resources of the countries at war, which enables them to produce great numbers of guns and great quantities of the body, mind, and heart, which ammunition. It is due also to the new methods of directing gun fire from airplanes.

ments in artillery, it has been neces-dry and iron and copper works is sary to develop better methods of pro-in demand in Barranquilla. Colombia. duction. The protection of troops con-sists of digging stronger field en-trenchments than have been necessary in previous wars. Here we have the main reason for the so-called "trench warfare," which during the last three years has largely taken the place of former methods of moving armles about freely until they came into con-flict with each other. The spade has become one of the soldier's best weap-ons of defense.

The chief improvement in methods of defending entrenched troops is the of defending entrenched troops is the increased use of machine guns. Machine guns must be put out of operation by artillery fire or by rifle fire directed against the gunners before infantry can advance directly against them. There has been also a great increase during the present war in the use of barbed wire in front of the trenches as a means of defense.

How to Judge a Woman By Her Hair

There is real common sense in Poll's—"Shore Acres."

"Shore Acres" made famous by James A. Herne, noted actor and playwright of his time, will be the attraction at Poll's Theater next week. Its presentation gives to the patrons of this popular priced theater a play of the widest appeal. Clean cut and wholesome throughout, it tells a story true to life. Its characters are the fisher folk on the New England coast, and their trials and tribulations are reproduced with fidelity.
